Samantha had always been trapped in a world of disturbing family secrets. Daryl had a paranormal ability to perceive the emotional state of another individual. He was also able to transmit these intense emotions and could cause others to act on them. He was not genetically modified and nobody conducted secret experiments on him when he was a child. This, for him, was natural. They had known each other for some time now and they had always maintained a pleasant, rather cool relationship. They might even, on occasion, hold a brief conversation about mainly the weather, but never showed any interest in each other. Up until now, when Daryl genuinely liked a girl, the feeling was always mutual. Young Adult / Teen Love and Romance (Social Issues) Try it now. Chapter One It should have been quiet in the class for at least the next forty minutes or so of the period, while everyone had his or her head bent down toward the stack of papers on the desk in front of them. Some students even had their arms curled protectively around their exam papers. Some stared off in the distance as if something only seen by them would suddenly give them the answers they were so desperately seeking for. Others were scribbling fast and vigorously across the sheets of paper, lest the thoughts melted away and they forgot what it was they wanted to write down. So it was when I, sitting at my desk, balancing my pen between my index finger and my thumb, trying to come up with an answer for question 2B (iv), saw her walking into the room and it...
